

Local ASHI Home Inspector continues education by attending largest conference for professional home inspectors

- Tom Morgan, principal of Sound Home Inspections, receives Continuing Education (CE) credits toward Connecticut's required licensing or certification.
- ASHI offered 45 educational sessions to InspectionWorld Nashville attendees.
- ASHI's website is the definitive resource for information and advice related to home inspections.

932 Lee Street, Suite 101

Des Plaines, IL 60016

Tel: 847-759-2820

Fax: 847-759-1620

E-mail: hq@ashi.org

www.ashi.org

Mystic, CT, (January 31, 2014) – Tom Morgan, ASHI Certified Inspector with Sound Home Inspections, serving Connecticut and Rhode Island, recently attended The American Society of Home Inspectors' \(ASHI\) annual InspectionWorld conference, the premier conference and exhibition for the home inspection industry, in Nashville, TN January 12-15, 2014.

The four-day conference provided attendees with the opportunity to acquire new skills, enhance their professional knowledge and network with some of the best professionals in the industry. As a result of attending the full InspectionWorld conference, Morgan received 20 ASHI CE credits fulfilling his annual CE requirements for 2014 ASHI membership. In addition, Morgan also earned 9 CE credits toward meeting Connecticut state's required licensing or certification.

This year, ASHI offered 45 educational sessions broken into five different tracks from the inspection essentials track designed for beginning home inspectors to the advanced learning track, and tracks covering business management, specialty inspections and building science topics.

"ASHI remains committed to offering us the resources and essential tools so I can provide my customers with the services they want and need. I am proud to be part of an association like ASHI – the only home inspection organization with a certification program recognized by The National Organization for Competency Assurance (NOCA)," said Morgan.

With over twenty years' experience inspecting homes and commercial properties, Morgan is respected for his knowledge and thoroughness. Sound Home Inspections has some of the most advanced instruments for evaluating radon levels and provides some of the most detailed home and commercial property inspection reports in the industry. Morgan has added certification in HVAC, for additional service to his clients.

The ASHI website is the definitive resource for inspectors, consumers, real estate professionals and the media for information and resources dedicated to home inspections.

About the American Society of Home Inspectors

Founded in 1976 and with more than 5,000 members, ASHI is the oldest and most widely recognized non-profit, professional organization of home inspectors in North America. Its Standards of Practice and Code of Ethics is the industry standard. For more information, visit ASHI online. To stay connected to ASHI news and updates, please visit the association's Facebook Fan Page – the American Society of Home Inspectors.

About Sound Home Inspections

Tom Morgan, principal, has been a home inspector for more than 25 years. Tom is well-regarded within the home inspection profession. He has penned several articles for the "Journal of Light Construction" as well as having been asked to provide court affidavits for construction disputes and audits. In addition to home real estate transactions, he also evaluates commercial properties, such as apartment buildings, storefronts and warehouses. To follow Tom Morgan and Sound Home Inspections, please visit his Facebook page, Pinterest boards or visit his website for links to all his social media accounts.

-- 30 --